

About Emporis

Emporis is a global provider of building-related information. Emporis collects data on buildings of high public and economic value, connects them with involved companies, and sets standards for this information. Offered product lines include building intelligence, online advertising, and image licensing, and are used by customers from building industries and other sectors.

Emporis is one of the most respected and widely used sources for research, ratings and analysis of building data. A large number of users around the globe access and submit information about structures. Emporis is the driving force behind making building data universally accessible and useful while providing a remarkably high quality of information, around the clock and in real time.
